Product Description

Saltwater Fishing UV Enhanced Big Game Trolling Lure Octopus Skirts Lures

Skirt Material: Octopus skirts are typically made from soft, flexible, and durable materials such as silicone or rubber. These materials create lifelike movement in the water, which can be enticing to fish.

Skirt Design: The skirts are designed to resemble the tentacles of an octopus or other prey. They may have a slender, elongated shape with multiple strands that flutter and undulate in the water.

Color and Pattern: Octopus skirts are available in various colors and patterns, allowing anglers to choose options that mimic specific prey species or match the local forage. Bright and contrasting colors can increase visibility.

Hooks: Skirted lures are equipped with one or more hooks, often treble hooks, to securely catch and hold onto fish. Some models may have single hooks or assist hooks to increase hooking rates.

Head or Jig: The skirt is typically attached to a weighted head or jig, which provides casting weight, helps the lure sink, and maintains the proper orientation in the water.

Tips for Using Octopus Skirts Lures:

Rigging: Ensure that the skirt is securely attached to the head or jig. Proper rigging is essential to maintain the lure's action and prevent it from coming apart during use.

Casting or Trolling: Octopus skirt lures can be used for both casting and trolling. When casting, make long, accurate casts to cover a wider area. When trolling, vary your trolling speed and depth to find the most effective presentation.

Action: Experiment with different retrieval techniques to impart the desired action to the skirted lure. Depending on the species and conditions, you can use a steady retrieve, stop-and-go, or erratic twitching to mimic prey movements.

Target Species: Skirted lures are versatile and can be used to target a variety of fish, including tuna, mahi-mahi, sailfish, marlin, bass, pike, and more, depending on the size and design of the lure.

Change Skirts: Some skirted lures allow for easy skirt replacement. Changing the skirt color or pattern can sometimes trigger more strikes from fish that are showing interest but not committing to the lure.

Maintain Hooks: Keep the hooks sharp and in good condition. Dull hooks can result in missed opportunities and lost fish.
